Optimizing HPV+ Cancer Care

A Simple Way To Get Blood Drawn

Your physician has ordered a NavDx[®] blood test to aid in the detection of HPV-driven cancer. The test results will help inform how to manage your cancer care.

Before The Blood Draw

You will receive an EMAIL from Naveris (support@naveris.com), the lab performing your NavDX test. Please REPLY with:

- 1) your contact information (email, phone, mailing address)
- 2) your blood draw site preference, e.g. at home, a walk-in center, depending on available services in your area

After Naveris receives your information, a mobile phlebotomy representative will CALL or EMAIL or TEXT you to schedule your blood draw appointment.

If you choose an in-home collection: your Blood Collection Test Kit will be sent directly to you, or to the certified mobile phlebotomist who will perform the blood draw in your home. If the kit is being mailed to you, expect it to arrive in 2-4 business days. Please store the Blood Collection Test Kit safely at room temperature; please do NOT open the test kit.

If you choose a walk-in location: your Blood Collection Test Kit will be sent directly to you; expect it to arrive in 2-4 business days. Please store the Blood Collection Test Kit safely at room temperature; please do NOT open the test kit. Please remember to take the Blood Collection Test Kit to the walk-in clinic.

Prior to your appointment, you will receive a reminder CALL or TEXT from a mobile phlebotomy representative. Please make a note of the day and time of your appointment, and address of the walk-in facility (if applicable).

After The Blood Draw

A certified mobile phlebotomist performs the blood draw and will ship the sample directly to the Naveris lab. The NavDx test results will be provided to your physician within 7 days from the date the blood sample arrives at the lab. Your physician will contact you to discuss the test results.
